FIRE DEPARTMENT GREETS DELEGATES

TO M. E. CONFERENCE, SAYS DR. JAMES

TELLS OF RECEPTION

Mayor Leonard of Springfield Delivers Address of Welcome—Session Called Thursday Morning

Dr. C. C. James, pastor of the First M. E. Church, one of the three ministerial delegates from Missouri to the General Conference of the M. E. Church at Springfield, Mass., writes of the reception and the opening session. His letter in full follows:

We arrived in Springfield, Massachusetts on time and were delivered in autos to our respective Hotels. We received a warm welcome, so warm, in fact, that the building next door to our Hotel caught fire, and the musical clatter of the fire department, brought about a vociferousness to our welcome, that we did not anticipate. Yet we accepted it all with thanks, and were thankful in our hearts.

After finding a kind hearted restaurant man who was willing to accept Missouri money in exchange for his Springfield wares, my roommate and I secured supper. Then the hour of the evening program came.

The meetings are being held in the municipal auditorium the main floor is reserved for the delegates. There was an orchestra present to regale our ears with harmonious strains, and at nine o'clock which would be seven o'clock in Maryville, the program part of the reception began.

Judge Parker was chairman of the evening and acquitted himself in a fine way. Was an eloquent speaker. He introduced mayor Leonard who delivered an address of welcome that at times was quite interesting. The chairman then introduced Rev. N. McPherson of the Congregational church, gave the address of welcome for the Springfield churches. If he had not been introduced as a Congregationalist, I would have declared he was a Methodist, for he had the fires of evangelism burning in his bones. He was a splendid speaker. He related the fact of the first commencement of Springfield in a religious way. Three hundred years ago. That the first Psalm was sung not very far from the place of our meeting. He would closed up with the statement that the church of today must do what the Methodist church had always done. "Give to men an experience with God." He was followed by Bishop Hughes with an address of welcome, which was given in his usual happy vein. Then Bishop Berry who was the senior Bishop of the church, gave a good response to the various addresses of welcome, and the delegates were all served with punch, (I mean fruit punch). Then home to rest and sleep and to prepare for the opening session of Thursday.

At 10:00 o'clock Thursday, Bishop Joseph F. Berry of the Philadelphia Area called the body to order. The singing was led by a splendid pipe organ, and Brother Earl Harper, a grandson of Bro. Enyeart of the Missouri Conference. Bishop Cranston who was over 80 years old announced the first hymn, "Oh for a Thousand Tounges to Sing" and the old Bishop said: "There are a Thousand tongues here to sing it," and there were more than a thousand. The Old Testament lesson was led by the Rev. Lin Fang of the North China Conference. The new Testament lesson was read by the Rev. Joshwant R. Chitamber of the Lucknow Conference. The apostles Creed was then recited, and Rev. Henry C. Ballock of Eastern South America, led in the reading of the same. Then Bishop Frances W. Wanie of India offered a very comprehensive prayer. Then the Congregation sang "Love Divine! All Loves Excelling." Then was recited the Apostles Creed. Every nationality was requested to repeat it in his native tongue. Then came the closing prayer by the Rev. C. A. Tindley of Philadelphia, a colored preacher, who has in Philadelphia a membership of 4000 members, who are admitted by ticket to his preaching services, he giving two sermons in the morning, and one at night. No person is permitted to attend two sermons in the one Sunday.

You may read about and define eloquence, you will never hear it in its best form until you have heard this man pray. It was beautiful, rhetorical, well rounded sentences, yet not florid with rhetorical flourishes. The sentences were simply beautiful in their evenness, comprehensive in scope, yet with a spiritual depth and subtlety, that simply gripped you with lure of a lovers appeal. The uplift of a far reaching spiritual vision of God, and his love for you.

The doxology was sung in the natives tongues of those present. Then the conference was organized with Dr. Wade of Chicago as secretary, and the machine was ready to grind out the legislation for the next four years.

The matter of the orientals dress high lights the somberness of the ministerial suits. They are quite conspicuous in their fancy headgear. This is all for this time.

MELLON TAX PLAN IS FINALLY BEATEN

SENATE VOTES TO SUPPORT DEMOCRATIC TAX SCHEDULE.

FAVORS SIMMONS BILL

All Rates in Approved Measure are Considerably Lower Than Present or Mellon Proposal.

Washington, May 5.—The Mellon tax plan was finally beaten in Congress this afternoon when the Senate voted to substitute in the tax reduction bill the income tax schedule drafted and supported by the Democrats.

The vote was 43 to 40.

Defeat of the Mellon rates was accomplished through a motion of Senator Simmons, Democrat of North Carolina, to rewrite his plan into the bill. He was supported by the Republican "insurgents."

The maximum surtax rate in the Democratic plan is 40 per cent on incomes about $500,000, compared with the present maximum of 50 per cent, 25 per cent in the Mellon plan, and 37½ per cent in the tax bill passed by the House.

The normal rates of the Democratic plan are 2 per cent below $4,000, 4 per cent from $4,000 to $8,000, and 6 per cent above $8,000.

All of these rates are considerably lower than both the prevailing income tax rates and those proposed by Mellon and supported by President Coolidge.

Seven Republicans, one Farmer-Laborite, and thirty-five Democrats supported the Simmons plan. Two Democrats and thirty-eight Republicans opposed the Simmons plan.

Washington, May 5—The Senate moved closer today to a vote on the income tax provision of the new tax bill.

Leaders were hopeful that the income rates could be disposed of by Wednesday, the corporation and estate rates by Friday and the completed bill then passed by the end of the week.

It appears likely that the Mellon rates are doomed to defeat. Concensus of opinion on both sides today was that the rates ultimately accepted in the Senate will approximate those contained in the Longworth compromise bill passed by the House.

Washington, May 5—The Senate will be held in session almost nightly from now on in an effort to clean up pending legislation so adjournment of the Sixty-eighth Congress early in June will be possible.

The Congress decided to hurry a vote, first on the revenue bills now before the chamber. Next, appropriations will be disposed of and after that some sort of farm legislation will be enacted.

The True Story of Woodrow Wilson

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

CHAPTER XII.

How Woodrow Wilson Nearly Embraced the National Progressive Ticket in 1912.

Woodrow Wilson foresaw long before he entered politics as a candidate for governor of New Jersey that the Democratic party of the nation needed new leadership. His letters to friends indicate that he looked forward to the campaign of 1912 as the occasion for a rebirth of the Democratic party. Prior to 1910 when he became governor of New Jersey, suggestions that Mr. Wilson might prove the new leader did not appeal to him as possible of fulfillment. He had no party following. He had made speeches from time to time, it is true, on public questions and had spoken from one end of the country to the other before civic bodies and educational institutions but not until the Democratic leaders in New Jersey sought him for the gubernatorial nomination did he begin to think that perhaps at last the road to the presidency had been opened.

As if with prophetic instinct, Woodrow Wilson wrote a friend in the spring of 1912: "Roosevelt and Taft were busily engaged in splitting the Republican party wide open—so that we may get in."

Mr. Wilson was then Governor of New Jersey. He entered the Democratic primaries in various states and found himself successful in some but resisted as a rule by the organization Democrats. Progressive sentiment in both the Democratic and Republican parties had begun to crystallize. The reflex of the Taft-Roosevelt controversy on stand-patism and progressivism was felt in the Democratic ranks where it was not difficult to kindle fires of discontent over bossism and organization control.

There had been times when Mr. Wilson felt so indignant over boss control in the Democratic party that he was not unsympathetic with the idea of having a new party formed by the progressives of both the Republican and Democratic parties. Just after the regular Republican convention renominated Mr. Taft, a third party with Roosevelt at the head of it representing the progressive Republicans and Woodrow Wilson as his running mate, representing the progressive Democratic sentiment of the country was not only seriously suggested among progressives but there was a moment when Woodrow Wilson himself thought of it too.

It was in those weary hours when the Democratic convention at Baltimore was deadlocked and it looked as if Champ Clark might be nominated. Mr. Wilson had persuaded himself that a victory for Clark would be a victory for the bosses in the Democratic party and he felt that those bosses were somehow in the control of Wall street. This was so deeply ingrained in his mind that at a critical moment in the balloting, he turned to members of his family and remarked that he might not be able to support the Democratic ticket if Wall Street captured the Democratic party. When a friend standing by suggested that the third party convention would soon be held and that Mr. Wilson might be tendered the nomination for the vice presidency, the Governor of New Jersey remarked that "circumstances might make such a development possible."

"Strange as were the incidents which led to the nomination of Woodrow Wilson for the presidency, stranger still are the tales of how it was accomplished. The Wilson forces seemed like crusaders. They had responded to William Jennings Bryan's outcry against boss control. They refused to make trades and political bargains. They refused to yield even when Champ Clark had passed the majority mark—never before had a candidate gotten so far without winning the necessary two thirds. National political conventions are rarely susceptible of precise analysis. Too many things happen at once as the numerous tacticians concentrate their subleties and cajolery. Coincidently the floor leaders are working in a half dozen places to accomplish the same general result.

The newspapers at the time gave William Jennings Bryan substantial credit for bringing about the nomination of Mr. Wilson but ever since then prominent delegates have insisted that in the many secret conferences of that convention, Mr. Bryan, after successfully blocking the nomination of Champ Clark, really favored himself, proposing from three to five other candidates on the Monday morning following the Sunday adjournment on the theory that the Convention was "hopelessly deadlocked." Irrespective of what really happened, the country was given the impression that Mr. Bryan played an effective part in setting the stage for the nomination of Woodrow Wilson. And Mr. Wilson not unmindful of the Bryan influence in preceding Democratic conventions was inclined to share that view.

Without doubt the fact that the Third Party Convention would meet a week or so later and nominate Theodore Roosevelt as the national progressive candidate was constantly in the minds of the Democratic delegates who, as usual, were not a little influenced in selecting a candidate by the thought that he deserved the nomination who had the best chance of winning the election. Would the Democrats permit the third party to draw progressives from the Democratic party? The nomination of a progressive Democrat like Woodrow Wilson, his champions at Baltimore argued, would checkmate such a possibility and give the country a new view of the Democratic party. There was something fascinating, if not sensational, about the spectacular rise of the college president to fame as a corageous administrator and a fearless spokesman of Democratic principles. Also, he had carried New Jersey by approximately 50,000 majority only two years before and his strength was undiminished by the record he had made as governor in a state repressed theretofore by boss management of bi-partisan effectiveness.

Convinced that he won the nomination at Baltimore on principle, Woodrow Wilson endeavored to conduct his campaign on the same high plane. Not once during the 1912 contest, for instance, did Mr. Wilson mention the name of Theodore Roosevelt. Never during his eight years of the presidency did he make a direct reply to any statement by Colonel Roosevelt. He tried to avoid personalities in politics. He was much more interested in principle, preferring always to deal with persons implicitly rather than explicitly.

(Tomorrow's chapter tells of Mr. Wilson's singular notions about Party Platforms and Campaigning).

BIG CORN LAND MOVE UNDERWAY

IN NEBRASKA, IS REPORT FROM OMAHA

BIGGEST IN HISTORY

Indication of What Investors Think of Future—Woods Bros. Buy 1 Million for Themselves

Omaha, Neb., May 5—One of the biggest movements in corn land that this Western country has experienced is under way, and indicates what investors familiar with the farming situation think of the future.

Woods Brothers of Lincoln have just finished buying $1,000,000 worth of corn land for themselves. They say they did not buy the land for speculation or to resell, but bought it to farm.

A survey just completed of 10 counties in Nebraska shows the sale of $800,000 worth of farm land since the crops were harvested last fall. Two sales in Box Butte County, not included in the $800,000 movement, totaled $200,000.

Most of these deals have been on a strictly cash basis. While many farmers are having a hard time paying bills and meeting expenses, the fact that 10 counties could buy $800,000 worth of land and pay cash for it, in addition to the $1,000,000 purchases of the Woods Brothers, indicates that not all farmers are hard up.

Big Business Men Buying

Nearly all these sales were made to farmers living in the same neighborhoods, men familiar with the lands they bought who know what to expect from them in bushels of corn and wheat.

Nor do these $1,800,000 worth of farm sales include the hundreds of thousands of dollars in land deals in the other 90 counties of the state. The survey has been completed in only 10 counties. The land sold for as low as $100 an acre and as high as $250.

Woods Brothers, who have just finished buying $1,000,000 of land, are big business men. There are three of them. They own about 100 telephone systems south of the Platte river. They are directors of banks in Lincoln and Omaha. They own one of the biggest department stores in Omaha and are heavily interested in a wholesale dry goods house.

Buy as Investment

"We bought the $1,000,000 worth of lands because good lands today are the safest and best investment on the market," said George Woods, one of the brothers. "We think it the best way we can invest our money."

"There is not today a surplus ear of corn in all the world. And this in spite of the fact that in the last three years the corn states have produced the largest crops of corn in the history of corn growing.

"Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Iowa and Nebraska produce 75 per cent of the world's supply of corn. This places corn in a position where it is not subject to the market conditions which control wheat, which is being harvested somewhere every month in the year.

"The consumption of corn is increasing the world over faster than the consumption of any other kind of farm produce, while the supply necessarily remains limited for the most part to these five states.

"We are going to see dollar corn next winter, even if we don't do a thing except sit down and wait for it to come—and raise the corn.

"It is much easier now to get money to invest in corn lands than it is to get money to invest in 5 per cent and 5½ per cent securities—the best of them.

Expect Goodly Dividends.

"The experience of foreign countries under false financial stress following the war has shown that the man who owned some land was the only one who wasn't ruined in the catastrophe.

"Despite all this talk about farming not paying, men with money had rather put their money into these lands than in the best of securities.

"We have lands that cost us $150 an acre and pay us dividends of 5 per cent. We believe that with the higher prices we can see before us that land will return good dividends when priced at $250 an acre."

Woods says plenty of western farmers have been making money through all the hard times.

1924 vs. 1913

IN THE advertising columns of this paper, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has stated repeatedly that the price of gasoline is low, and particularly so by comparison with the price of other products.

To confirm the truth of these statements, your critical attention is directed to the table below compiled from statistics of the United States Bureau of Labor and Department of Commerce, showing the price level of various commodities in January, 1924, as compared with that of 1913—taking the latter year as 100:

Gasoline	97.0
Flour	135.2
Potatoes	140.2
Farm Products	144.0
Milk	155.5
Butter	168.7
House Furnishing Goods	176.0
Building Material	181.0
Sugar	196.3
Cloth and Clothing	200.0

Average for all commodities 151

The average man has come to accept the fluctuation in the prices of milk, butter, sugar, potatoes, and like products, as natural. This acceptance is so well-established and time-honored as to be a prosaic incident.

The buying of gasoline is relatively a new experience.

The economical production of gasoline requires large investments—which are possible only with big institutions of vast capitalization. Because of this, the petroleum industry has come in for criticism that does not fall to the lot of other industries.

The above bulletin proves conclusively that the price of gasoline is low and that the dollar in 1924 will buy more gasoline than it could in 1913. This demonstrates the efficiency of the petroleum industry, in which the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is proud of its position as a leader.

This Company has earned its leadership by the every-day practice of fairness, equity and justice to all—consumer, employe and competitor—in such a manner as to have gained the confidence, respect and esteem of the thirty million people of the Middle West.

FEATURES

When we think of London, we think of fogs; the mention of an Irishman prepares us for a joke.

We live in a world of special features. Every well known institution has its specific symbol.

The wise business house also should own its specialty—one thing "de luxe" for which it is noted.

A restaurant should boast its cup of coffee; a tea room, its pastries; a haberdashery, its line of neckwear; a movie house, its super music.

Specialties are trade-getters. Every one of us will follow the band with the best drum-major.

And the place to advertise specialties is in the Democrat-Forum want ads.

Bankers Make State Survey

Agriculture Shown to Be Chief Industry by Big Majority

A survey of the agricultural situation and general business conditions existing in Missouri as seen by the bankers of the state, has been issued by the Missouri Bankers' Association, which has been summarized from 823 questionnaires circulated among its members. One hundred and twelve counties and 662 towns are represented in the answers.

Agriculture was shown to be the chief industry of the state by an overwhelming majority, 780 banks listing it as their principal source of deposits, with manufacturing ranking second, 52 banks naming it. It is all the more significant, in the face of these figures, when 328 bankers classified the financial condition and mental attitude of farmers and livestock men in their communties as "discouraged," against the 185 who considered it "improved." Other replies expressed this condition as "worse," "unimproved," optimistic," "depressedd," "favorable," "bad," "normal" and alarming."

Three hundred and twenty-four answers said that farms were being abandoned in their districts, while 299 bankers were not confronted with this problem. The maximum decrease in land values as compared to those of two or three years ago was 66 per cent, and the minimum, 10 per cent. The average decrease was found to be 37 per cent.

Corn was found to be the main crop, with the production of livestock second in the list of sources of farm revenue. Rural schools were called "fair" by 458 bankers and "good" by 331. Only thirty admitted that their communities had bad schools. The average condition of roads was "fair" in 537 cases, "bad" in 155, and "good" in 123.

Five hundred answers stated that farmers will not use government credit facilities, while 204 bankers were doubtful of this and 85 said that they would. Co-operation between town and country was listed as "unsuccessful" by 539, against 242 who said that this co-operation existed in their communities. One hundred and thirty-seven of the 662 towns represented were found to provide community centers for meetings of the rural and urban population.

The six most important community problems confronting the state, as seen by the bankers, are: Roads, co-operation between town and country, schools, extravagance, marketing and taxes. Others mentioned were: Bootlegging, mail order, keeping population on the farm, freight rates, housing conditions, investment in local securities, too many automobiles and law enforcement.

Mr. Reese was knocked down by the mules and sustained cuts on his head and face. He was in an unconscious state when picked up by Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Scott who were on their way to Barnard. SAGE TEA DANDY TO DARKEN HAIR

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, say well-known druggists here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

Surprise Dinner Given Minister and Family

About 250 Attend Anniversary Celebration Event at College Park Yesterday—Talks and Poem Given.

A surprise dinner in honor of the fifth anniversary of his pastorate in Maryville, was given the Rev. R. E. Snodgrass and family at the College Park yesterday by more than 250 members of the church, and friends of the family.

Mr. and Mrs. P. R. Moore invited the Rev. Mr. Snodgrass and family to dinner yesterday, and after arriving at the Moore home it was suggested inasmuch as it was such a beautiful day, that the lunch be taken to the College Park, which was readily agreed to.

Upon arriving at the park, a large number of automobiles were already parked and the minister expressed regret they had come so late they would not be able to get any of the tables and would have to spread their lunch on the ground.

The surprise was soon made known, however, and the Snodgrass family were received into the group by the Men's Bible class song, "Howde-do, Snodgrass family, howde-do."

Talks were made by Alex Holt and W. E. Goforth, and ananniversary poem by "Jerry." A response was made by both the Reverend and Mrs. Snodgrass.

It was suggested by a number of those present that the dinner be made an annual affair.

Maryville Golfers Win Games Yesterday

Five Hamburg Players Here in First Series of Matches in Tournament—Corning Here May 11

The Maryville golf team of the Country Club won all three matches played yesterday afternoon on the local links against the golf team from Hamburg, Ia. Only five men came from Hamburg to represent their club. The results of the matches were determined by the number of bogies, pars and low scores, which the Maryville men won in all cases.

Next Sunday the Maryville golf team will compete with the golfers from Corning, Ia., in the second series of matches of the tournament in the Iowa-Missouri Golf Association. The Corning team will be the guest of the Maryville Country Club.

Three foursomes were played. M. S. Hamilton and F. C. Miller opposed H. Bronson and Dr. R. C. Danley of Hamburg. F. C. Miller made the lowest score of any of the Maryville golfers, making a 42 and 44 score, with eight pars and four bogies. Hamilton's score was 48 and 50, making six pars and three bogies. Dr. Danley made a 49-49 score, four pars and two bogies. His partner H. Bronson shot a 52-52 score, making one par and one bogy.

In the second foursome Forrest Gillam and M. L. Beattie opposed Dougan and Brotner. Gillam's score was 46-47; Beattie's 53-50; Dougan's 62-50 and Broetner's 53-57.

"Good-by To That Worry"

HAVEN'T you often worried over the reason why your dainty wash garments lose that soft finish they had when first brought from the store?

Since the discovery of LINIT, the remarkable new starch, this is no longer a worry to the modern housewife. As you probably know, LINIT is the starch used by the great fabric makers to give their garments that soft, pliable finish you admire when they are new.

To keep all your garments looking fresh and new, starch with LINIT. This new starch penetrates fabrics so uniformly that it makes even cotton or mercerized garments look and feel like linen.

You will find LINIT strengthens and helps preserve each thread, thereby lengthening the life of the material. And since LINIT eliminates lint, your garments stay clean longer.
